Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 1600 on Monday 11 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rain clearing, then frosty. Mainly dry with sunny spells Tuesday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rain and mainly hill snow at first, but much of Scotland will become dry, clear and cold overnight with a widespread sharp frost and icy stretches. Wintry showers over Northern Isles and far north with fresher northwesterly winds.

Tuesday:
A mainly dry, cold day with plenty of crisp winter sunshine. Wintry showers in northeast at first, but these dying out by afternoon. North or northwest winds becoming light.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Bright, cold start Wednesday, but rain and hill snow slowly edging in from west, snow increasingly falling to lower levels central and eastern Scotland. Gradually clearing Thursday. Drier, brighter Friday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.